

Date: 8.11.2019

Venue: Faculty of Social Sciences, U kříže 8, 158 00, Prague 5, room J1036

Programme:¹

08:15 – 8:45 - Registration

08:45 – 9:00 – Welcome speech

09:00 – 10:15 Panel 1 – East Asia

Hungdah Su (National Taiwan University) – Can the EU and Aisans jointly save the Global Governance in Crisis?

Olga Lomová (Faculty of Arts, Charles University) – Are we in „Cold War“ with China, or not?

Jana Sehnálková (Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University) – Frenemies: U.S.-China Relations Under Donald Trump

Mojca Nemgar (Niccoló Cusano University, Rome) – South Korea: Middle power in post-Cold War geopolitical context

Jan Bečka (Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University) – The New Great Game? China, the West and the “Struggle” for Southeast Asia

10:15 – 10:30 - Q&A

10:30– 10:45 – Coffee Break

10:45 – 11:45 Panel 2 – Central and Eastern Europe

Michael Romancov (Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University) – Central-Eastern Europe and the Asia-Pacific thirty years adter the “End of History: Similarities and differences, comparison of two distant regions

Petr Just (Metropolitan University in Prague) – Reviving the Past: Historical Traumas in Current Political Discourse in Central Europe

Cezary Kościelniak (Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznan) – The shift from West-East to the North-South: the change of Polish geo-cultural and geopolitical axis

Wojciech Łysek (Jagiellonian University, Krakow) – The third wave of retreat of democratization. Case study of state of the territory of Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth

11:45 – 12:00 - Q&A

¹ This conference is an outcome of the Charles University Research Development Schemes, programme PROGRES Q18 - Social sciences: from multidisciplinary to interdisciplinary. The conference is financially supported by the Taiwan Foundation for Democracy.